

University of Regina

Fatigue and Skill Acquisition in People Living with Multiple Sclerosis

We are inviting adults aged 18+ with multiple sclerosis to participate in a research study investigating fatigue and motor skill acquisition.

If you are eligible and decide to participate, you will complete one 1-hr study session and four 1.5-hr study sessions that involves performance of a motor skill task and an assessment of nervous system excitability.

If you are interested, please contact:
Eduardo Toledo-Aldana
Faculty of Kinesiology and Health Studies
neurolab@uregina.ca
306 585 4066